

Whether or not you attended:

be sure not to miss:

"breaking the cycle of violence - saving lives"

"breaking the culture of silence - saving our lives"

John's 1st Less-Legal Weapons Conference Breaking the Culture of Silence - Saving Our Lives

Saturday 19 November 2005, 2 p.m. - 5 p.m.
Friends Meeting House, 188 Woodhouse Lane, LEEDS. LS2 9DX.
Opposite Leeds University's Department of Electronic Engineering building

(A fringe event of the Leeds Together For Peace festival)

The Jane's 8th Annual Less-Lethal Weapons Conference was held at The Royal Armouries, Leeds UK, on 26-27 October 2005. The invitation to the Jane's conference reminded us that "conflict today is complex and lethal force is not the only option".

Actually, "conflict" today is a great deal more "complex" than most citizens are allowed to know, and "lethal force" is only one of multiple options.

Sceptics need only to

1. Google search the phrase, in quotes, "microwaving Iraq" and click on the search results
2. Visit www.raven1.net/silsoun2.htm and access the primary sources cited
3. Visit the US Army's Military Thesaurus entry at <http://call.army.mil/products/thesaur/00016275.htm> to learn that there are other "options" not being discussed, options with domestic social control applications, not just battlefield applications.

Jane's 8th Annual Less-Lethal Weapons Conference

(please see: www.janes.com/defence/conference/JLLW2005/overview.shtml)

enabled Jane's delegates to learn about certain weapons that apply "non-lethal force". However, "manipulation" weapons are definitely off the Jane's conference agenda. So, John's is holding its own "fringe" conference, also in Leeds, as part of the Together For Peace festival.

Some attending John's will be individuals who testify that they themselves have been targeted non-consensually, in tests or deployments of manipulation weapons. Some attending will be political activists, involved in the international struggle to have "manipulation" weapons banned, exactly as the European Parliament called for them to be banned, in Paragraph 27 of Resolution A4-0005/99, over six years ago.

You are invited too.

What on earth are "manipulation" weapons?

Sorry. Perhaps you've never heard of "manipulation" weapons. (After all, you're almost certainly not supposed to know about them.)

"Manipulation" weapons is the description of this ought-to-be-controversial subclass of less-lethal weapons used in the wording of the European Parliament resolution mentioned earlier. They are weapons for manipulating people. Most of them are neuro-electromagnetic weapons that attack the human central nervous system (i.e. your brain). You've probably never heard of neuro-electromagnetic weapons either, but now is your chance to learn.

Despite the European Parliament resolution calling for such "manipulation" weapons to be banned, the British government is on record to the effect that it doesn't want these weapons to be banned. In fact, the British government doesn't even want these weapons to be discussed, publicly, either.

Yet the British government (to be specific, the Home Office's Intelligence and Security Liaison Unit) has given a written assurance that any use that may be underway of these weapons is lawful. That unit has written saying that certain kinds of the use of such weapons are overseen by somebody called "The Intelligence Services Commissioner".

John's stance is that using manipulation weapons against British civilians in time of peace is aptly described as something decidedly "less-legal" than the Home Office asserts it is. Why not make up you own mind, after meeting some of the victims, hearing their harrowing testimony of abuse, and reading some of the political correspondence and the scientific literature available?

Is it safe?

No actual weapons will be used at John's. There will, however, be a not-to-be-missed demonstration of a commercial device. This device is based upon military ultrasound technology that has been declassified, since the development of neuro-electromagnetic technology for delivering the same disturbing effects, but "through the wall", and more accurately targeted.

Please come along, and find out for yourself what some victims are already suffering. If we don't get this issue publicised soon, nobody will be safe.

Who hosted Jane's Less-Lethal Weapons Conference?

Jane's Information Group, which publishes Jane's Defence Weekly. www.janes.com

Who is hosting John's Less-Legal Weapons Conference?

The Harassment and Torture Charity (THAT Fund) www.thatfund.org

The founder and secretary of the THAT Fund charity, John Allman, is also the convenor of The Alliance For Change. He stood as a Parliamentary candidate in three constituencies during 2005, in Harrogate and Knaresborough at the general election, as one of three Alliance For Change candidates nationwide, and in the Cheadle and Livingston by-elections.

Please see www.AllianceForChange.co.uk.

John Allman is also secretary of the international evangelical Christian group, Christians Against Mental Slavery, which maintains the following three identical websites:

- www.Slavery.org.uk
- www.ExodusNow.com
- www.BanManWeapons.com

You can write to John at:

98 High Street
Knaresborough
N Yorks
HG5 0HN
United Kingdom

or email him at John.Allman@AllianceForChange.co.uk or John.Allman@BanMindWeapons.com

John Allman studied Maths, Physics and Computing as an undergraduate, graduating in 1980 with first class honours. His postgraduate qualification, obtained in 1995, is the Common Professional Examination in English Law.

The independent trustees of THAT Fund include the Director of Compassion UK, a much larger and established charity, whose website is www.compassionuk.org.

The Harassment and Torture Charity, 98 High Street, Knaresborough, N Yorks. HG5 0HN. United Kingdom +44 1423 797693
Trustees: Richard Atterton, Clive Berry - Founder/Secretary: John Allman (+44 7930 519793)
Website: www.thatfund.org Email address: info@thatfund.org
UK registered charity number pending